The technique involves marinating the bird with condensed milk, sugar and spices before cooking it. "It's delicious and traditionally, people have this craving for this duck dish," said Jesus Pedraza, owner of Puerto Condesa. The dish is popular among tourists visiting Mexico and some locals in the city are getting into the trend of cooking the ducks in milk. The 'caviar de tomate' (tomato caviare) is also a traditional dish with its roots in the cuisine of the Austrian empire. Caviare is the brain and eggs of salmon, and a traditional way to enjoy the dish is to mix it with tomato and vinegar. The 'caviar de tomate' is made with the same elements. The Mexican fish tacos are a specialty of the state of Jalisco. In the tacos, seasoned codfish is shaped into a disc and battered before being deep fried. The star of the dish is the rajas. They are strips of red chilli that are stuffed into the fish. The 'tortas of the coast' is a favourite of the Caribbean coast of Mexico. It is made from rolled tortillas stuffed with shredded chicken and avocado before being deep fried. "It's one of our best selling dishes," said the owner of El Nopal. The 'ropa vieja' is made from shredded beef or
